yesterday afternoon just after leaving the Ritz-Carlton, where he was stopping 1901.

Mr. Higinbotham

of age, returned Thursday from Florida, where he had been spending the winter, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, and her husband, both of Chicago. He told them when he left the hotel; at 11 o'clock that be was going to the headquarters of the Illinois committee for welcoming homecoming troops, which are located at 107 East Thirty-fourth street.

The was through his endeavor that the association made up of Chicago news-association made up of Chicago news-assoc Mr. Higinbotham who was 81 years of age, returned Thursday from Florida. Although he was a leader in commercial and social life Mr. Higinbotham found time and money to devote to character T. Crane, and her husband, both of table and philanthropic work. He was Mr. Higinbotham who was $1 years

Ite started down Madison avenue, which has been since the opening of the association made up of Chicago news-boys and bootblacks was put upon a sound franctal basis. He was president and was knocked to the street. The driver put on the brakes at once and did not run over him. He was seen to be in a serious condition and was carried at once to the army hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Peterson. There it was found that his condition was serious. His skull had been fractured and internal injuries were feared. Mr. Higinbotham was conscious on arrival at the hospital, and apparently realizing his condition asked that Me. and Mrs. Crane be notified. Mr. Crane was with him during the afternoon con-tinuously. Just after 3 o'clock Mr. Hig-

His parents. Henry D. and Rebecca Wheeler Higinbotham, went from Onelda county. New York, to Illinois in 1834, settling on a farm near Joliet, where Mr. Higinbotham was born Octo-ber 19, 1838. As a youth he worked on the farm and attended the Joliet schools and later Lombard College at Galesburg. and later Lombard College at Galesburg. In 1866 he went to Chicago, where he took a course in a commercial college, returning to Joliet after his graduation and obtaining employment in the Will County Bank as a clerk. In 1859 he went to the Joliet City Bank at an increased salary, leaving to become cashier of the Bank of Oconto.

Forsaking the banking business in 1861 young Highabotham for a second time went to Chicago, becoming an assistant bookkeeper with the dry goods firm of Cooley, Farwell & Co. In the cummer of 1862, however, he enlisted in the Mercantile Battery, serving until the end of the war in 1865. His health had terday at Atlantic City, where he had been fragile up to the time he entered, the army, but the rigors of campaigning proved of the utmost benefit physically, and he frequently said that his army experience had saved his life.

Enters the Field Firm.

At the close of the war Mr. Higin-Harlow Niles Highnotham, a former ship in the firm of Field, Leiter & Co. During the great fire in 1871 he personally saved his firm heavy loss and through his efforts $609,000 worth of silks and other goods were taken from the street at Madison avenue and Forty-fifth street yesterday afternoon just after leaving held until his voluntary retirement in with members of his family and died soon after 3 o'clock in Debarkation Hospital No. 5, Grand Central Palace, where he was taken.

1901.

Mr. Higinbotham was president of the World's Columbian Exposition, held at Chicago in 1892-93. He was one of the leaders in the project and the success of the World's Fair there was due in no

fic. According to the driver of the sm-bulance he stepped in front of the car and was knocked to the street. The driver put on the brakes at once and public schools. Mr. Higinpotham was a leader in developing the Municipal Tu-berculosis Sanatorium and Hahnemann Hospital.

Married a Childhood Friend.

From 1897 to 1909 he served as head of the Fleid Museum of Natural History. He was also vice-president of the board of trustees of Northwestern University. Mr. Cady also designed a number of buildings at Williams, Trinity and Wesleyan. He was born at Providence, R. I., the son of Josiah and Lydia Cady, and was graduated from Trinity College in 1860. He came to this city in 1870, forming a nartnership with William S. Gregory. ery Company. In 1866 Mr. Higinbotham married

Miss Rachel Davison, a childhood friend, who had lived on a neighboring farm outside Joliet. She died some years ago. After achieving success Mr. High-botham spent large sums in converting his father's farm into a beautiful coun-try estate. He restored an old grist mill which his father had built on Hickory Creek, and that and the house in which Mr. Higinbotham leaves four children,

Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., Mrs. J. M. Patterson and Harry and Harlow B. High-Charles L. Hutchinson, vice-president of the Corn xchange Bank, said of him

last night:
"Harlow Higinbotham was one of the best citizens Chicago ever had. The city owes a great deal to him for his splen-did work, especially during the World's Exposition period. He always had the good of the community at heart, and was very generous. Of late years he gave almost all his time, when he was at home, to the work of the Chicago Home for Incurables. He was a big, generous man, and I was very close to him. Recently he has been spending his summers on the Massachusetts shore and part of his winters in the South. His
